

SPB Human Resource Professional Course launched

Randy Dampeer of the Office of Recruitment and Selection presents to state agency human resource employees at the inaugural SPB Human Resource Professional Course.

The State Personnel Board held its inaugural session of The SPB Human Resource Professional Course November 7-9 at the SES Training Center in Ridgeland. Present at the pilot session were human resource professionals representing 14 different agencies from across the state.

The course is designed to provide an orientation and comprehensive overview of how agencies and the SPB interface in order to conduct human resource business in state government. It is the first module of what will be several core courses and electives developed by the Office of Training to establish a statewide human resource certification program.
